Want to learn how to make money in the markets this weekend?

Hi Fellow Traders & Investors --- I learned many years ago that the weekends are an excellent time to do research and learn about the financial markets. When you have a job working 40 to 50 hours per week, study and research is difficult Monday through Friday.

You are probably too stressed and busy during the week to have time to research and study techniques on how to increase your profits trading and investing.

That's why we have weekends. Most successful traders and investors will make time in their busy schedules to research, study and learn how to become successful and then extract profits from the financial markets.

Are you a "Weekend Warrior?" Are you willing to make time available in your busy schedule to learn techniques and strategies that can help you "bring home the bacon?" Perhaps you are already retired but still very busy? Are you willing to make some time available to become a "Weekend Warrior?"

For me, I'm retired from a career as an USAF officer and 20+ years in industry, I never want to stop learning. I never want to stop the profits from flowing into my accounts, for I have 7 grandkids headed to college. I want to help them financially to make their lives easier as they do the hard work of getting the best education possible.

Would you like to join me as a "Weekend Warrior" to carve out some time in your busy schedule to learn more about the financial markets? If so, check out the information below that will help you get started this weekend.

Market Tech Tips -- April 10 & 15, 2014

There are 2 new Market Tech Tips that you should find very interesting. Dennis reviews what is a "Dead Cat Bounce" and "One Day Reversals -- Time to Buy Telsa?"

I know that I have made quite a bit of money daytrading the dead cat bounce, however, it's usually a very quick trade and also very high risk. Review these videos to see if these techniques are right for you?
